

SUIT IS FILED TO BREAK WILL

Of Late August Bobb Sr. Who Died Last September In Washington Township.

NEARLY ALL OF THE ESTATE

By Will Goes To One Son.—Other Children And Grandchildren Not Satisfied.

A suit has been filed in the circuit court contesting the will of the late August Bobb Sr. who died in Washington township in September 1911 leaving an estate which is estimated to be worth about $20,000. By the will one son, August Bobb, Jr., receives practically all of the estate. A few small bequests were made, including $75 to each of the other children. These children, Mrs. Amelia Niederhelman, Mrs. Elizabeth Blaze and Mrs. Sophia Wiethoff of Seymour and two grandchildren, Mrs. Elizabeth Tiemeyer of Dudleytown and Henry Kriete southeast of Seymour, children of Mrs. Caroline Kriete deceased, are the plaintiffs in the contest case and are represented by Elser & Kasting, attorneys.

The allegations include the various grounds prescribed by the statutes as foundations for contests of wills, including undue influence, unsoundness of mind at time of drawing will and that will was unduly executed.

At the time of the drawing of the will it is stated that Mr. and Mrs. Bobb made their home with the son and the will was drawn in Seymour. The value of the estate, which included considerable land, was not as great at that time as at present. By the will all of the property aside from a few small bequests, was left to the widow and at her death was to go to the son August Bobb Jr. Later Mrs. Bobb died so that when the will was probated, Sept. 11, 1911, the son became the principal beneficiary.

When Mr. Bobb died he was a little over eighty years of age.

DUNN.—Mrs. Martha Dunn, age 67 years, died Tuesday morning at the Deaconess hospital in Louisville, where she had been for the past two months.

She was born in Kentucky and in that state was married to W. R. Dunn. They moved to Indiana and before locating at Cortland twelve years ago they lived at Alton. They spent two years in Florida but returned home last fall on account of Mrs. Dunn's health. Besides the husband, one son, Dr. J. T. Dunn of Louisville, one daughter, Mrs. J. M. Jenkins of Cortland and an adopted daughter, Mrs. K. F. Bottorff of this city, survive.

Mrs. Dunn was a member of the Methodist church and had many friends in the county.

The funeral services will be conducted from the residence of Mrs. K. F. Bottorff on N. Pine street, Wednesday morning at 10:30 by Rev. R. G. Clinton of Shelbyville. Burial in Riverview cemetery.

BRETHAUER.—Mrs. William Brethauer died Monday evening at her home in Dudleytown after an illness of several months of consumption. She was born Sept. 15, 1859, one and one-half miles east of Dudleytown. The husband and six grown children with several sisters and brothers and many other relatives survive.

Two of the sisters, Mrs. Mary Rothkopf and Mrs. Henry Brethauer live in this city.

The funeral services will be conducted from the residence Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock by Rev. Deimer. Burial in church cemetery there.

At the Democratic primary in Scott county Hugh Colvin was nominated for treasurer. Newt Howell for clerk, Alvin Clark for sheriff, Joe Keith for recorder and Charles Montgomery and Allen Clark for commissioners. The race for judge was close. According to reports Sam Wells of the Scott County Journal defeated Mark Storen by four votes. There are two other counties in the district, Ripley and Jennings and Ripley has a candidate for the nomination, Robert Creigmire. According to the expression of some of the politicians here Wells' victory at home will be a rather empty one as the Ripley man with his own county vote needs only two more to nominate and men who were in Jennings Monday say that Creigmire won most of the delegation there. Wells however doubtless appreciates the victory at home.

The Junior O. U. A. M. gave a banquet and entertainment for their families and friends last night in their lodge rooms. The program included musical selections by Misses Pearl and Lizzie Fox, Clara Pollert, Lawrence Hattabaugh, Guy Hazzard and the orchestra, violin solos by C. V. Collins and Ed Owens and recitations by Arthur Montgomery, Esther Prall, Edna Montgomery and J. U. Montgomery. A prize was presented to Charles Felter and a short talk was made by Dr. Prall.

Miss Martha Schmidt left this morning for New Orleans, La. to attend the Mardi Gras and visit her brother, Rev. Ed Schmidt. Miss Clara Schmidt who has been there several weeks, will accompany her home.

Albert Prather Succeeds Lincoln Holmes as Assessor of Carr Township.

PRECINCT LINE WAS CHANGED

In Hamilton Township By The Commissioners.—Other Business At Board Session.

A slight change was made in the precinct line in Hamilton township by which thirty votes are thrown from the Surprise precinct into the Cortland precinct.

Charles Pauley, who conducts a saloon on East Third street in this city was granted privilege of changing locations. He will occupy a building which adjoins his old location.

Albert Prather was appointed assessor of Carr township to succeed Lincoln Holmes. The latter resigned his office Saturday.

Peaches in March no longer are the impossibility of tradition, for they are on the menu cards at hotels de luxe in Chicago, but at "60 cents each." Some enterprising peach grower in South Africa has found a variety which will stand shipment so far and has opened up a new market. On the same menu are English hot-house grapes at $1.75 per bunch and a special variety of the great American apple, which is put into steward's French as "Delicioso" although it is the Stark Delicious of commerce, served uncooked, at 20 cents each and sometimes more. There also are Tabasco bananas, the finest in the world in size and flavor and apricots from Africa at a price which reflects the time, trouble and expense involved in getting them. The peaches in California are but now in bud and those of Georgia will not bloom for months so that the stewards are as proud of their menu item South Africa peaches as they are of the Cape of Good Hope apricots just below it among the fruit delicacies, which now include strawberries and cream at $1.75. Nowadays, on the verge of the "fruitless" days, a fine discrimination about fruits is only more important to the steward of a big hotel than the privilege to list bottled milk from the dairy farm of a millionaire packer or squash or frogs' legs from the farm of some other magnate whose recreation is a farm even if the milk costs more than champagne and the squabs cost more than quail. The hotels vie with one another for products from these estates because patrons take a keen interest in the names attached on the menu cards.

DISTRESSING DESTITUTION

Case of Five Children Presented In Juvenile Court.

Judge Shea held juvenile court Monday evening to consider the case of the five children of Mrs. Ella Mershon Runge who lives north of Surprise. The trustee had brought proceedings to have the children placed in the care of proper authorities or organization to find them homes owing to the destitution of the family. The children ranged in age from five to seventeen years, the youngest being an invalid. Mrs. Runge has been married twice, her first husband whose name was Mershon is dead and she is separated from her last husband. Three of the children, Walter, Pearl and Mamie Mershon, were children by the first husband. Evidence was presented to show that the family has been in distressing circumstances, living in an old log house in which there are wide cracks which admit the cold; the windows have also been knocked out. The family it was stated had been living by the help of the trustee and on money the oldest son has earned by chopping wood. It was in several respects a distressing case. The youngest child's condition appeared pitiful and the mother's fear, even under the hard circumstances under which she lived, that her children would be taken away was touching. She was badly frightened over this possibility and declared they were getting along better than ever before. She thought she could find homes in the neighborhood for two of the children. While sorry for the mother the judge believed that the destitute condition of the family demanded that in justice to the children they should be found homes and referred the matter to the board of children's guardians. The latter was not ready to take action and the children were released for the present.

Mrs. Naomi Jenkins of Crothersville was here this morning with her little son enroute to Brownstown to consult Dr. Zarring about an operation which the child will undergo at Louisville some time soon.

Rev. George Rader, Evangelist John W. Marshall and Glenn Allen, singer, went to Columbus this morning to attend a meeting of the Ministerial Association there today.

The Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. H. R. Kye, corner of Fourth and Walnut streets.

The pictures and vaudeville acts at the Majestic last night were the best that they have ever had. They have arranged to have a change of program each night.

Miss Ora Jones entertained a company of friends at an "Irish party" last night at her home on South Chestnut. It was a most delightful evening to all present.

Sherman Cockerham, who recently sold his farm near Pleasant Grove to Fred Lucas, has moved to Seymour and is living at the corner of Third and Lynn streets.

The officials of the B. & O. Southwestern railroad, which was so effectively tied up between this city and St. Louis by the last heavy snow were not to be caught napping this time. Saturday night when the snow commenced drifting a light engine was dispatched to the west end of the road to run up and down the track at the places where the snow was most likely to drift, thus keeping the track clear. Later on a wrecking crew with snow plows was sent out for this same kind of work. The track was kept clear and the trains are all running on almost schedule time.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Cordes, Jr., celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary Monday evening at their home on East Fourth street. They had for their guests relatives and friends. Mrs. Cordes is quite a talented musician and entertained her guests pleasantly.

REVIVAL SERVICE

At The Nazarene Church Last Night. Meeting Tonight.

In Psalms 32:11 we read, "Be glad in the Lord and rejoice ye righteous and shout for joy all ye that are upright in heart."

Those who attended the service at the Nazarene church last night, know that there was some rejoicing and shouting and why not, when the angels in heaven rejoice over one sinner that repenteth. The evangelist, Rev. C. W. Ruth, preached a most excellent sermon from the text found in John 15:1-2. He showed clearly and scripturally what it means to be engrafted into the true and living vine, which is Jesus. He dwelt at length upon the subject of regeneration, or joining the church, or shaking hands with a preacher; it means a resurrection from the life of sin, and quickened by the Spirit into spiritual life. The gospel is not a funeral dirge but a resurrection anthem. Just as there are expressions and manifestations of physical life, so there are expressions and manifestations in spiritual life. No person can be converted or born again, and not give some expression to it. Life always manifests itself.

He also brought out distinctly, that which is found in the language of the text, two works of grace. The man or woman who has been converted, brings forth fruit spontaneously without any effort, just as a tree has sap, bud and blossoms and brings forth fruit without a burden or effort. Jesus also says that the branch which is in the vine and bearing fruit, must be purged to bring forth more fruit. Purge here means to cleanse. The evangelist then brought forth a very striking and helpful illustration of his own experience and compared his life of regeneration, to that of a field with its surface clear. He said it was not long after he was converted until he left the sprouts of anger, pride, jealousy, springing up in his life and kept him busy suppressing and keeping these sprouts down, but one day he found the more excellent way, and was purged from the root of sin, which caused these sprouts to be manifested in his life.

In closing, he said, "I thank God for the experience, which Mr. Wesley called the second blessing, would never have been a preacher or soul winner, but for this experience." He said he has seen more than fifty thousand people bow at the altar in his own meetings, and more than a hundred who are missionaries and preachers who have been saved in his meetings. Come early tonight to get a seat.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

GRIT, GRACE, GUMPTION.

Ever hear about Charles Sunderland of Alton, Ill?

Although he has neither fingers nor hands and only the poor stump of an arm, Sunderland is a prosperous home owner and a popular citizen. The people are proud of him because—

He is only the piece of an arm he has lost a home, wife and babies.

That is the story:

At the age of nine years Sunderland was supporting his father's family. One day while he was feeding a cane into the cruel machine took off one of the shoulder and the other at the elbow. His first words on recovering consciousness were—

"Who will chop wood for you now, ma?"

Pluck?

When the boy got out of the hospital he did not mope nor pose as a hopeless cripple. He learned how to chop wood with his stub.

As he grew up Sunderland saved money by hauling wood and bought a team. Now he owns two teams and does most of the heavy hauling business in Alton.

He loads coal or sand by grasping the shovel in the bend of his elbow, puts it against his side and with a body motion throws the shovel upward.

How does he drive?

He puts the lines over his shoulder, wrapping them around his half an arm. And his son Fred says, "Pa can hitch up a team faster than I can."

His family:

Years ago Sunderland married a widow with five children. He has fathered all of them, educated them and sent them out into the world to prosper. He had a second flock of three, the oldest of whom, Fred, drives one of the teams.

Why shouldn't Charles Sunderland be called Alton's "most representative citizen?" This is his sentiment:

"Anybody ought to be thankful for being able to make a decent living, arms or no arms, and raise a family of his own."

And so he goes his way to his work whistling and content.

And you!

You have two good arms, two good hands and ten good fingers—twelve times as much as he.

And you complain!

When you read the story of gritty, prosperous Charles Sunderland of Alton, are you not just the least bit ashamed of yourself?

THE CAT.

From the standpoint of utility, except in so far as decorativeness is utility, not much can be said for the average cat these days. The cat enjoys its privileges without greatly concerning itself with the responsibilities. In point of fact, its services in and about the house would be superfluous. The mousetrap now does for most households what the cat formerly did. Nor is the cat particularly distinguished by the affection for its master which is so conspicuous in the dog. Its sole domestic rival for the warm spot under the kitchen stove, if you will note the cat carefully, you will observe that it usually wants something of you when it comes around. None of its calls are courtesy calls. The arched back and the "mew-mew" are eloquent of its desires. If it does not receive these marks of attention and fails to find anything else that interests it, say, a nice warm spot in your lap to take a doze in, the cat moves majestically and differently away. Your personality has no particular charm for it. It admires the radiator more than it does you. These characteristic symptoms of self-centeredness and grave detachment are reinforced by the eyes of the cat. A cat's eyes look at you, but they seem to be looking beyond you. They are like the eyes of the ancient Monks, which always seem to be seeing the distant desert that it loves and that is calling to it by night and day.

Incidental to the holidays some one has taken the trouble to make a comparison between the census of 1900 and that of 1910 relative to the production of poultry in the United States. It appears that the production of turkeys has declined nearly one-half in the ten years, says the Manchester Union. Ducks have also fallen off; geese have remained nearly the same, and chickens have increased. The obvious conclusion is that unless there shall be a change the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey will presently be a tradition of the past. The goose may remain a while longer, together with the duck, but the chief reliance must be upon the hen. The high price of eggs is stimulating the hen business as never before, and the hen fanciers are profiting by it if no one else is. At the Chicago show a record price was reached when a cockerel was sold for $800. It was a new breed, not yet common, a "Rose-Comb Rhode Island White." It is stated that the show has been so popular that apartment-house dwellers have been making purchases for domestic fowls on the fire escapes.

Dr. de Keating Hart of France has been demonstrating the fulguration treatment for cancer at the Skin and Cancer Hospital in New York. The first part of the treatment consists in the removal of the malignant growth of tumor; the second consists in the shooting of sparks of static electricity into the cavity made by the knife, after which the healthy cells, it is asserted, are forever incapable of harboring cancerous germs. The current has no effect whatever on diseased cells, and to make the treatment effective the most minute parts of the tumor must be removed.

A bonfire was held by the Postoffice Department of over 170,000 Christmas postal cards, barred because of their tinsel decoration, notification having been made that these cards are unavailable on account of danger to the clerks in handling. The number sent in spite of the warning shows that men and women are but children of a larger growth, who keep on doing things apparently because they have been told not to do them.

Sixteen babies in a courtroom in New York upset the court's dignity and yelled their contempt of court till the latter was driven to ignominious surrender in an adjournment. Which proves that the infant of the species is more vociferous than judicial precedent.

It is not very complimentary that big crimes being committed in Paris are being laid to American crooks because deemed beyond the ability of the French. This is one superlative we would willingly forego.

Bishop Fallows says that a man should live at least one hundred and twenty years. Yes, and we should all go to the good place when we die—but—

It is estimated that American forgeries on checks and drafts reach $15,000,000 a year, but forgery is a poor way to boom business.

Shoes are likely to rise in price, but freight rates are to be lower. Presently it may be cheaper to ride than to walk.

Leap year makes it plain to us all that a lot of women are single from choice.

It is a wise cold wave that refrains from wearing out its welcome.

What they need is a remedy that will heal thoroughly without irritation, but ordinary ointments are useless in such cases.

That is the condition our new skin remedy, Saxon Salve, was devised especially to meet, and we sell it under a positive guaranty of satisfaction or money back. Even in the first few days of treatment you can see a remarkable improvement.

Saxon Salve gives immediate relief from the terrible itching and burning, and also penetrates the skin thoroughly, healing it in a short time. It is the most satisfactory we have ever seen, and is as good for young children as for older people. The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

Fifty Years Ago Today.
March 5.

The new Federal ironclad Monitor, destined to revolutionize naval warfare four days later, was still in the hands of mechanics in New York.

Van Dorn's Confederates were within a day's march of General Curtis' outposts near Bentonville, Ark. Senator Andrew Johnson was appointed brigadier general and military governor of Tennessee by President Lincoln.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the celebrated congregational minister and editor, was stricken with apoplexy at his home in Brooklyn.

An Essential Part of Religion

To be a Christian is to be a follower of Christ. And the man who wants to be a follower of Christ must study the character of Christ that he may make it his own.

Jesus defined his own character in very plain words. "The Son of man is come not to be served, but to serve, and to give." To serve and to give must be our motto if we wish to be followers of Jesus. He spent his life in service, saying "I am come down from Heaven not to do my own will, but the will of him that sent me," and after he had finished the work which God had given him to do (John 17:4) he gave his life a ransom for many.

Giving is therefore an essential part of following Jesus, as much so as service is. And it is the duty of every Christian to consider carefully and prayerfully what he can and should give, and then to study the different ways in which he can serve God effectively for his gifts. Most persons seem to begin at the wrong end by waiting till some special appeal is made, and then giving under the impulse of that appeal without having formed any definite purpose as to the total amount to be given in the course of a year. And it is reasonably safe to say that most of those who give only in this way give a much smaller proportion of their total income than they suppose.

Systematic Giving.

Systematic giving is the only true way; for it is the only way that is based on a frank recognition of God's claims and an honest effort to meet them. The Nashville Christian Advocate makes the following sensible remarks on this subject:

"Thousands upon thousands have adopted the tithing system, and it should be no matter of surprise to those who believe in God and his word that these thousands upon thousands are wonderfully blessed in their spiritual life and in their material affairs. Yet there may be a misleading influence in the meaning ordinarily attached to the words, 'I give a tenth to God.' There is danger that people will think that we may give nine-tenths to ourselves as long as we give one-tenth to him.

"God demands the ten-tenths. He tells us that in supporting ourselves and our families, and in supplying the social, civic, mental and spiritual demands of our natures, we are truly giving to him. It would be much better to say when laying aside that tenth which is for God: 'While we feel that we should give all to God, we are giving this one-tenth to him for the support of his church and his little ones who through the highways and the byways of the world.' This is the idea which establishes the proper ratio between what belongs to one part of God's work and what belongs to another part.

Recognition of God's Gifts.

"One-tenth of what we receive from God—and we receive from no other hand—is surely not too much to give to him in carrying out his purposes through his church. Some people think that it is too little. One thing is certain: no sacrifice for God has ever made the maker unhappy or less prosperous."

"He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound unto you; that ye having always all sufficiency in everything, may abound unto every good work."

PERFECT PATTERN OF CHRIST

Rational Criticism Unable to Take Away Divine Attributes of the Son of God.

It is Christ rather than God whom Christianity has held up to believers as the pattern of perfection for humanity. It is the God incarnate, rather than the God of the Jews or of nature, who, being idealized, has taken so great and salutary a hold on the modern mind. And, whatever else may be taken away from us by rational criticism, Christ is still left; a unique figure, not more unlike all his precursors than all his followers, even those who had the direct benefit of his personal teaching. It is of no use to say that Christ, as exhibited in the gospels, is not historical, and that we know not how much of what is admirable has been superseded by the traditions of his followers. Who among his disciples or among their proselytes was capable of inventing the sayings ascribed to Jesus, or of imagining the life and character revealed in the gospels? Certainly not the fishermen of Galilee; as certainly not St. Paul, whose character and idiosyncrasies were of a totally different sort; still less the early Christian writers, in whom nothing is more evident than that the good which was in them was all derived, as they always professed it was, from the higher source.—John Stuart Mill.

Her Beautiful Eyes

James Whitcomb Riley

her beautiful eyes! they are blue as the dew
On the violet's bloom when the morning is new
And the light of their love is the gleam of the sun
O'er the meadows of Spring where the quick shadows run
As the morn shifts the mists and the clouds from the skies—
So I stand in the dawn of her beautiful eyes.

And her beautiful eyes are as mid-day to me
When the lily-bell bends with the weight of the bee.
And the throat of the thrush is a-pulse in the heat,
And the senses are drugged with the subtle & sweet
And delicious breaths of the air's lullabies—
So I swoon in the noon of her beautiful eyes.

her beautiful eyes! they have smitten mine own
As a glory glanced down from the glare of the Throne;
And I reel, and I falter and fall, as afar
Fell the shepherds that looked on the mystical Star
And yet dazed in the tidings that bade them arise—
So I grope through the night of her beautiful eyes

GIRL'S SAILOR OR MIDDY DRESS.

The popular sailor dress is one of the most charming style ever devised for the small girl. The model illustrated here has the regulation blouse with large sailor collar, effectively trimmed with braid. The usual plaited skirt is employed with the front center box-plait in panel effect and an inverted box-plait at the back. It is attached to an under waist to which the yoke and standing collar are also attached. Serge is a good suggestion for a design of this character, though and of the appropriate wash materials may be utilized to advantage.

The pattern (5674) is cut in sizes from 6 to 12 years. To make the dress in the medium size will require 3½ yards of 36 inch material and 4½ yards of braid to trim, as pictured.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

SOME HOT BREAKFAST DISHES.

For a cold frosty morning a hot cake is most acceptable. Waffles are cakes that are more wholesome than the ordinary griddle cakes as they are cooked crisp and brown.

Waffles.—Mix and sift one and a fourth cups of flour with a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of soda. Separate the whites and yolks of two eggs, beat well and add one cupful of thick sour milk to the yolks; stir in the dry ingredients and add three tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Cut and fold in the whites of the eggs and bake on a well-greased waffle iron.

Oatmeal Muffins.—Mix and sift together one and one-half cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sugar. Cut in one-fourth of a cup of butter, add a half of a cup of milk gradually, one beaten egg and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, with a cup of cooked oatmeal. Bake in muffin rings placed in a buttered pan.

Breakfast Savory.—Have ready two tablespoonfuls of butter, half an onion, a cup of diced bread, five eggs, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper; melt the butter in a saucepan, add the chopped onion and fry brown, add the diced bread, brown this, add salt, pepper and put into the other mixture, toss with a fork until the eggs are set. Serve immediately.

Baked Riced Potatoes.—Riced potatoes are excellent if put again through a ricer and placed in a buttered baking dish with plenty of seasonings and baked a delicate brown.

The War Fifty Years Ago

Activities of Federals on the Upper Mississippi—Wooden Gunboats Move Up Tennessee River to the Alabama Border—Efficiency of Warships Made Out of Passenger Steamers—Putting the New Ironclads to the Supreme Test—The New Confederate Ram and the David Built to Defeat Her—General W. T. Sherman Again Takes the Field—Lincoln Hurries Forward the Mortar Boats—Difficulties of Equipping Armies.

By Captain GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.

THIS period fifty years ago, the last week in February and the early days of March, was one of great activity in the opposing navies. In the east the Confederates were completing the famous ram Merrimac at Norfolk, Va. Feb. 23 the United States government accepted from John Ericsson the little ironclad Monitor, although the pigmy was unfinished. For two weeks she remained in New York in the hands of mechanics, who worked night and day to have her ready to do battle against the Merrimac. The fame of this ram had spread in the north, and timid ones in Washington feared that that city would be attacked, perhaps New York, Philadelphia and Boston in turn, unless some mysterious agent should come to the front and defeat her.

In the west the ships of both sides were getting ready to dispute the control of the Mississippi river. On the lower Mississippi the south, notably the state of Louisiana, was preparing to head off the western gulf squadron, which Commodore Farragut was assembling to attack the Confederate defenses at New Orleans. On the upper Mississippi and on the Tennessee river the Federal naval commanders were especially active. The navy had captured Fort Henry on Feb. 6 and fought well but vainly at Fort Donelson, on the Cumberland, ten days later. Immediately after the fall of Fort Donelson the warships of the fleet engaged there began to advance up the Tennessee toward Alabama.

Warfare on the Upper Mississippi.

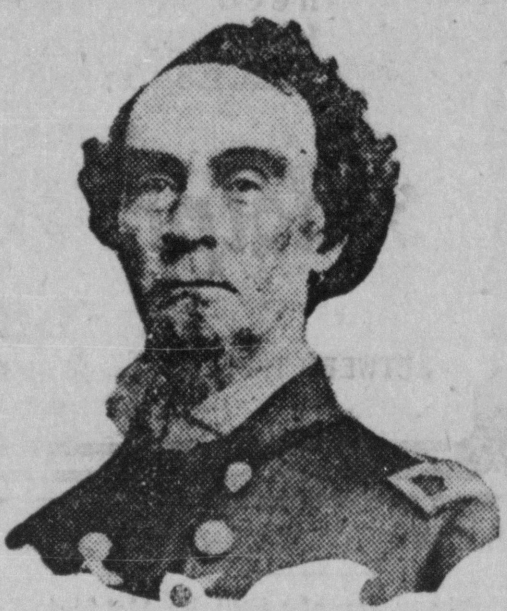

On March 1 the wooden gunboats Tyler and Lexington fought with the Confederate shore batteries at Pittsburg, Tenn., the landing nearest to the future battle ground of Shiloh. Both vessels were to play an important part in that battle five weeks later. On the upper Mississippi the Fort Henry and Donelson fleet, called the western or Mississippi flotilla, went heroically to work to open the great waterway downward and meet the Farragut ships from New Orleans in case they got past the big forts which the Confederates had built at the river's mouth. Flag Officer Foote, commander of this flotilla, had been wounded at Fort Donelson, and at Fort Henry and Donelson together, three of the new ironclads had been put out of action temporarily by Confederate shots. These were the Essex, St. Louis and Carondelet.

The first action of Foote upon his recovery was to look after the Confederate post at Columbus, Ky., the point of the first class. Walke won honors on the Tyler and was placed on the deck of one of the very first of the famous Eads ironclads launched at St. Louis in the fall of 1861, the Carondelet.

Three Pioneer Gunboats.

The Tyler, with her consorts, the Lexington and the Conestoga, began the warfare on the upper Mississippi in the summer of 1861 and became the nucleus of a powerful fleet of wooden boats and ironclads which early in the war gained control of the great waterway as far south as Vicksburg. These three ships had been purchased at Cincinnati in May, 1861, by Commander John Rodgers, son and namesake of the hero of 1812, and converted from river passenger steamers into gunboats. This had been done by lowering their machinery, strengthening their frames and protecting their decks by heavy bulwarks. The Tyler carried six eight-inch shell guns and two thirty-two-pounders, the Lexington four eight-inch guns and two thirty-two-pounders and the Conestoga four thirty-two-pounders. Like all of the naval force on the Mississippi at the time, they were under control of the war department, an arrangement which caused no little friction.

The ironclad additions to the fleet were made just before the attacks upon Fort Henry, and the ships were an experiment there and at Donelson. There was still much to learn about them after their performance under fire from the forts. One point unsettled was their availability for fighting against ships on the broad Mississippi. They had so far encountered no naval enemy on equal terms. As soon as the post and removed all the stores and munitions of war down the Mississippi to the new stronghold established by General Beauregard at Island No. 10 and New Madrid. Beauregard had just arrived from Virginia to help stem the tide of conquest which the Federals were making in the central west.

This move against Columbus had been initiated by General W. T. Sherman. Sherman had just returned to the field after an absence of some months. In the fall of 1861 he had held a command in Kentucky on the so called "Big Sandy" line. From this duty he had been relieved by his superiors in a manner which placed him under a cloud. On his return from his leave Sherman was assigned to the drilling of recruits at a camp of instruction at Benton barracks, St. Louis. Here through the lowering days of an unusually wet winter he went doggedly on his work.

After the fall of Fort Henry General Halleck ordered Sherman to repair immediately to Paducah, Ky., and take command of the post there. In this service Sherman was to come into contact with Grant and emerge from the cloud that had hung over him all winter. His soldiers occupied the abandoned Confederate works at Columbus on March 2. His activities were shortly directed southward by way of the Tennessee river instead of the Mississippi. Orders reached him March 1 to organize a division to proceed up the Tennessee and to co-operate with forces under General Grant and C. F. Smith, who were to advance by the same route.

Leadership in the Federal operations against the new Confederate stronghold at New Madrid and Island No. 10 were intrusted to General John Pope, whose forces for the campaign were drawn from camps west of the Mississippi. Owing to the strength of the Confederate position a siege was prepared for, the army to be supported by the navy. The Confederates had resolved to defend Island No. 10 to the last, because upon that depended the success of their cause in Missouri. In support of their 7,000 troops on the scene they mustered a respectable flotilla of wooden gunboats, converted to the service from river passenger steamers, the same as the Federal boats Tyler and her consorts.

Lincoln and the Mortar Boats.

Additions had been made in February to the ironclads in Commodore Foote's flotilla and, what was equally important, a fleet of mortar boats. These were especially adapted to siege operations. It was said that their arrival in time to play a part in the siege of Island No. 10 was due to the impatience and energy of President Lincoln in person. The boats which would carry the mortars were built at St. Louis under the eyes of Commodore Foote, but the iron beds upon which the mortars would rest were cast at Pittsburg. The getting of these mortar beds to the boats was the problem which troubled Lincoln. Foote finally sent a representative armed with due authority to the Pittsburgh plant to hurry the matter up. In spite of all, the boats had not been ready for use at Fort Henry and Fort Donelson, but twenty of them reached Mississippi in time to strengthen the guns of Foote's fleet at Island No. 10.

The SALT CURE

Dr. H. H. Baker asserts that common salt is a cure for what is often termed "shrewishness" in women.

The wife of Henry Peck possessed a most unpleasant habit. She seemed to think he was tame and gentle as a rabbit. And she would criticize his acts, likewise his lack of action. And scold poor Henry Peck until he bordered on distraction. She was not what one ought to term a crabbed wife, or cross—'Twas simply that she wished it understood that she was boss.

Now Henry Peck with great delight learned that the salt he sprinkled upon our food would make her voice as sweet as bells that tinkle. Would make her lose her ruling ways, her dominant demeanor. And thus insure a household life much gladder and serene. So when she next upbraided him for some misstep or fault He seized the cellar and he shook upon her head some salt.

Poor Henry Peck! Immediately his wife became quite flustered. The speech she used was hotter than the hottest brand of mustard. Was sharper than white vinegar and stinging as red pepper. And Henry thanked his lucky stars he was a speedy stepper. For out he fled pursued by her and by a rolling pin. And though he then apologized, she would not let him in.

Then Henry Peck sat down and thought and long he cogitated. He solved the problem finally, and then rose elated. And hastened to a wholesale house where salt was sold by acres. For he saw that this remedy should not be flung from shakers. And when next time his wife began to let her temper run, He pulled a valve above her head—and down there came a ton!

Lost.

His forehead knitted with lines of grief, the man is on his knees. "Lost! Lost!" he moans.

Trembling, the others stand about him, waiting his next words. They have offered him what little consolation, what little aid, is in their power. But what do words avail when a strong man is struggling with the blinding realization of his fears?" "Lost! Lost!" he wails, beating his hands and his forehead upon the floor.

Realizing that he has reached the crisis in his life in which mundane interference is useless, the others wait, wonderingly. The man straightens up, and rises to his feet, the light of a new determination in his eyes, the glow of a new resolution on his countenance.

"I can't find that collar button," he says. "Wonder if there's another one in the house."

He Guessed Wrong.

"Harold," says the young wife, "if you were to become a Mormon, and were allowed to have six wives, would you pick out for the other five?"

"Why," Harold muses, "I should select five duplicates of you, my dear." Instead of appreciating his gallantry, as he had expected, she bursts into tears with:

"And when we were engaged you vowed I was the only girl on earth, that there never was nor could be anyone like me!"

Harold exerts himself to soothe her, and finally says:

"You know I wouldn't be a Mormon anyway, darling."

With a fresh outburst of tears the grief-stricken wife exclaims:

"Ah! You mean that if there were any others like me you wouldn't marry them! You brute! I'm going home to mamma."

Other Considerations.

"She is the most beautiful I have ever seen," enthusiastically says the young man who is telling his father about the girl to whom he has become engaged while away on his vacation.

"No doubt, my son," replied the father. "But," he adds, "looks are not everything. Mere beauty does not always constitute that which maintains the affections and insures happiness throughout life. There should be—" "As to that," interrupts the son, "she has about a million in her own name."

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World
—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Violin Worth a Fortune.

Probably the most valuable violin in the world is possessed by Herr Fritz Kressler, whose recent concert at the Queen's hall aroused so much interest and enthusiasm. It belonged to Mr. George Hart, the well-known connoisseur, and Mr. Kressler paid £2,000 for it. It is not only a genuine Guarnerius, but in other ways a remarkable instrument. On the tail-piece the maker's initials and the date (1737) appear in diamonds, the pegs and buttons are set with diamonds and rubies, while the case alone is worth £200, being of solid silver overlaid with tortoise-shell and decorated with arabesque and other ornamentations.—Tid Bits.

A Novel Salad.

A delicious and dainty salad—good at all times—is made by laying a slice of canned Hawaiian pineapple on a lettuce leaf. Heat a knife and spread cream or neuchateal cheese over the pineapple; arrange pointed strips of pimento like the petals of a poinsettia over the cheese; heap mayonnaise in the center and put a stuffed olive on top.

Quickly Restored by Using Ely's Cream Balm.

The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure can get instant relief simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm.

Unlike internal mixtures which upset the stomach, or strong snuffs which only aggravate the trouble, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic Balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose, head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and hearing. More than this, it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent its becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner.

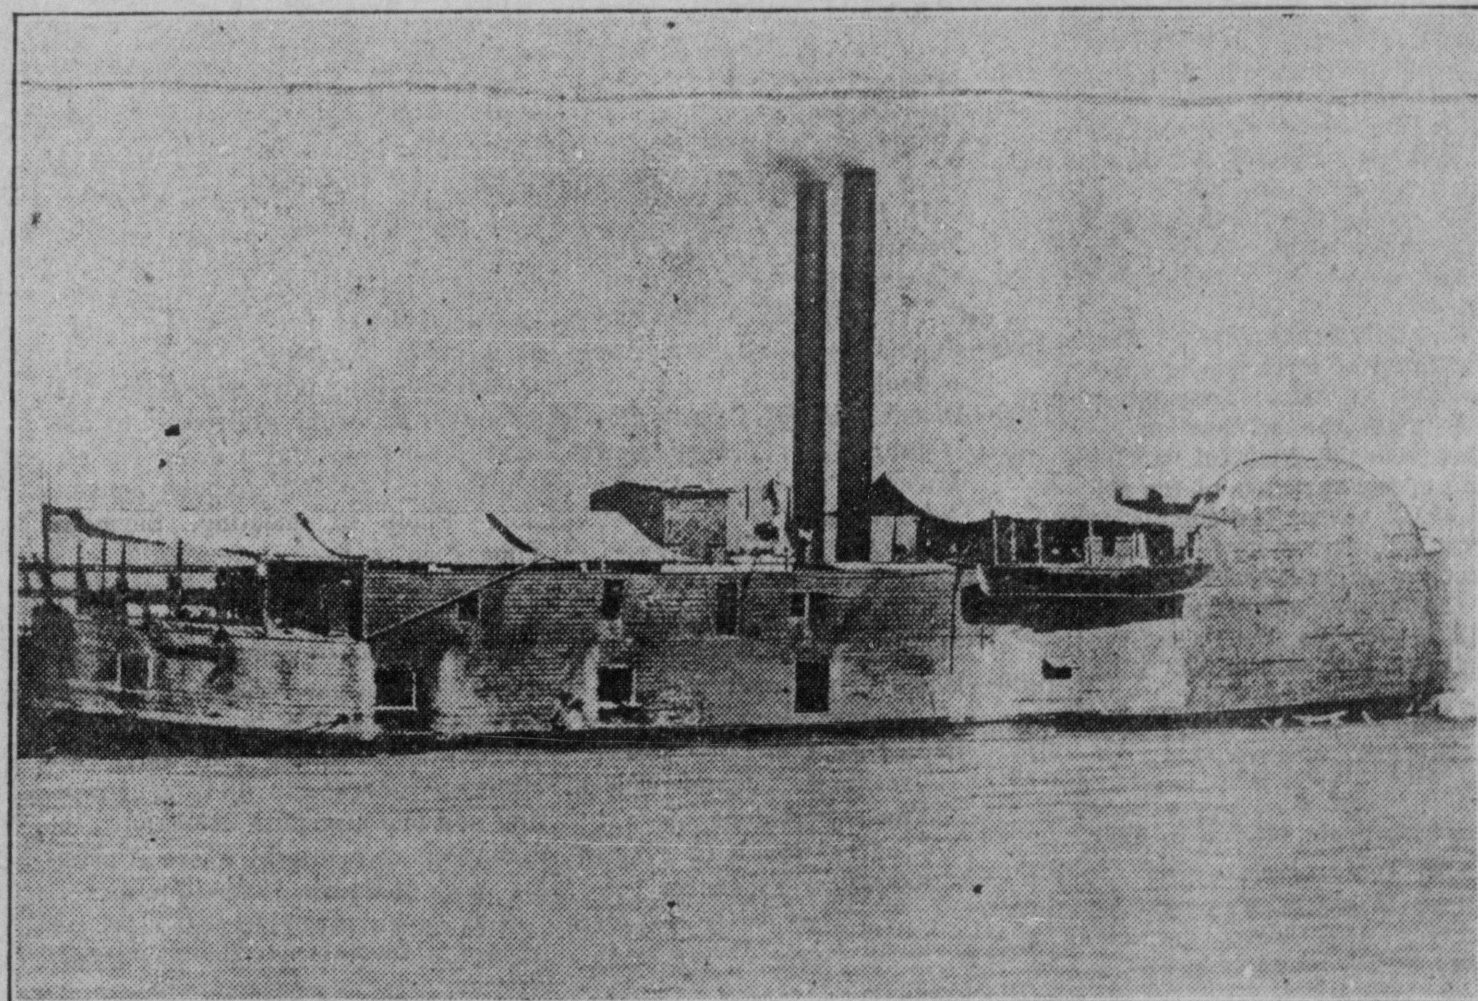

Very Serious

It is a very serious matter to ask for one medicine and have the wrong one given you. For this reason we urge you in buying to be careful to get the genuine—

THE FORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT Liver Medicine

The reputation of this old, reliable medicine, for constipation, indigestion and liver trouble, is firmly established. It does not imitate other medicines. It is better than others, or it would not be the favorite liver powder, with a larger sale than all others combined.

THE UNITED STATES GUNBOAT TYLER, PIONEER WARSHIP ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

where the Confederates who were forced out of central Tennessee by the Federal victories on the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers had assembled. The Confederate stronghold at Columbus had been maintained from the opening of the war. It was called the " Gibraltar of the west." The Federal ships felt the power of the Confederate ordnance at Columbus during the battle of Belmont, Mo., just across the river, on Nov. 7, 1861. In order to prevent the Confederate guns there from firing across the river against the Federals engaged at Belmont, also to prevent ships from carrying across Confederate troops to re-enforce those already fighting there, the little wooden gunboats Tyler and Lexington steamed close up and opened fire upon the batteries on the bluff. It was a hopeless undertaking. The commander of the Tyler at Belmont was Captain Henry Walke, a pioneer river fighter

Carondelet came out of the repair docks Commander Walke was ordered to try the experiment of backing her up stream. It turned out a complete fiasco, according to Walke, who wrote: "She would sheer from one side of the river to the other, and with two anchors astern she could not be held steady enough to fight her bow guns down stream. She dragged both anchors alternately until they came together, and the experiment failed completely."

Sherman Again at the Front.

The Carondelet was part of the fleet which reconnoitered at Columbus at the close of February. The forts looked formidable, and Flag Officer Foote withdrew to get together his full fleet of ironclads and mortar boats. Before he returned to the attack the Confederates under General Leonidas Polk, the "soldier bishop," had evacuated the mountains of Arkansas called troops from the various state camps to the nearest seat of war. Recruiting had been brisk all the fall and early winter, and so free was the response for men that the contending governments became embarrassed in supplying equipments for the various arms of service and moving troops, equipments and supplies to distant points where they would be needed.

The pressure for weapons to fight with was very great on both sides. As the first year of war drew to a close the shortage was felt on both sides of the line. In the north the arsenals worked day and night, and private manufacturing plants were impressed to turn out muskets, pistols, cannon and sabers. The same thing was going on in the south, but to a limited degree. In its dilemma it imported many riders and cannon from Europe.

FOREIGN TROOPS HAD QUIETING INFLUENCE

Order Has Been Restored In China's Capital.

Peking, March 5.—Since the opening of the outbreak about 5,000 persons have been killed, according to Yuan Shih Kai. Monday passed without the slightest disturbance, and today absolute quiet prevails in the capital city. It is evident that the arrival of the foreign forces has had the most salutary effect upon the disorderly element, who are no longer in evidence.

Many refugees have arrived here from interior points, among them a number of persons from Paoingfu, where there were serious riots, and where it was reported that a number of foreigners had been killed. Those who arrived here say that the reports are all wrong and that up to the present no foreigner has been hurt.

The delegation which was sent here to represent the revolutionary leaders telegraphed to Nanking urging that the greatest speed be exercised in the formation of the new government, and asking that the request for Yuan Shih Kai to proceed to that city be withdrawn. This, they say, is regarded by them as absolutely necessary in order to preserve the internal peace of the country and to prevent foreign intervention.

The situation at Tientsin is very grave, the losses by fire being enormous, and over one million taels have been taken from the government mint. The Chinese authorities have appealed to the foreign consuls to assume control of the city with the foreign military forces, and this will be done if found necessary upon a further consultation of the foreign ministers. The mutineers attempted to hold up a train carrying American troops from Tientsin to Peking, but were fought off by the American and British railway guards. A machine gun on a flatcar in front of the engine proved effective.

It is now declared that a secret Manchu organization of terrorists is sending emissaries to various population centers to incite the soldiers to revolt. From Shensi frightful stories are coming of the savagery of the soldiery and of the anarchistic conditions which prevail there. A new claimant to the throne of China is expected soon to raise the banner of revolt. The leader will be Marquis Chu Cheng Yu, a lineal descendant of the old Ming dynasty.

GETTING OUT

Americans Flee From Mexico in Fear of Their Lives.

Mexico City, March 5.—Ten Pullman sleepers, filled with Americans, left here last night for the American border with citizens of that country getting out of Mexico. It is said that there were 200 persons in the party all told. Four hundred had left earlier in the day. The belief here is that all the Americans in the republic are preparing for flight. It is believed that the major portion of those here will be out within the next fortnight.

Reports have reached here of another battle near San Pedro, in which seventy rebels and thirty of the rurales were killed. At Torreon it is said that a state of complete anarchy prevails. The town is surrounded and has been cut off from the outside world for weeks. Many persons are on the verge of starvation and hundreds of the hungry are begging in the streets. A recent sortie of the garrison was repulsed and the federals were driven back into the town, with a loss of fifteen dead.

Congressman Cline Renominated. Fort Wayne, Ind., March 5.—The Democratic congressional convention of the Twelfth district, held in this city, gave a second unanimous renomination to CURUS CLINE of Angola as representative in congress.

Here Is a Problem That Is a Problem.

Now a arithmetical problem that really is just a bit puzzling is offered by The Scientific American. It will stump everybody who exulted over the discovery of Ann's precious secret, but others may have a little innocent fun in figuring it out—with algebra barred, remember.

These are the premises whence the conclusion must be drawn:

"Five men and a monkey worked all day gathering coconuts and at night lay down beside them, postponing an equitable division till the next day. Wakening after an hour or so, and distrusting his companions, the first man, A, divided the nuts into five equal parts and after giving the monkey an odd nut that was left over from the division took one of the parts away and hid it. Then he returned, put the remaining parts together, lay down beside the other men and went to sleep again. Soon the second man, B, did the same thing, and after him, C, D, and E, in turn, each of them finding and giving the monkey one odd nut. When morning came the five men divided the nuts that were left, and that time there was no odd one for the monkey. How many nuts were there in the beginning?"

As a story of adventure, this can hardly be called plausible, and as a problem it is unsatisfactory in that the first, or smallest obtainable answer is not the only one that would satisfy the conditions, but before any little girl of 10 finds any answer at all, she will gnaw off several inches of pencil, and even really and truly Wise Ones may have to tap their bulging foreheads more than once or twice before they scornfully say, "That's easy!"

Col. Alexander Lockintsky, formerly a prominent Russian official and later a Siberian exile, will speak to the high school Friday evening.

MARRIAGE LAWS IN EUROPE

Obstacles Some Countries Put in the Way of Those Who Are Anxious to Wed.

London.—A blue book issued by the foreign office tells the British subject residing outside British territory how he may get married without returning to British soil. The book is intended primarily to point out the intricacies of marriage laws in foreign countries when one of the parties is an alien.

In Norway no clergyman may perform a marriage ceremony unless both parties prove that they have been vaccinated or have had smallpox. In the same country a guardian may retain his ward's goods and chattels if she should marry without his consent. Marriages between one of orthodox faith and a non-Christian are forbidden.

Parental consent is necessary to marriage in Russia, and if the prospective bridegroom has insulted his parents or grandparents or the bride's parents or grandparents their pardon must be obtained to make the marriage legal.

This rule of obtaining parental consent when the parties are minors obtains in nearly every country and in some of them the consent of grandparents is necessary. Divorce does not dissolve the matrimonial bond in most Latin countries.

Marriage laws sanctioned by the Byzantine emperors are still in force in Greece. There are many conditions that prohibit marriage there.

Practically any reason that would justify the belief that the marriage would be unhappy, such as riotous or immoral conduct on the part of one of the applicants for a license, is a bar to marriage in Peru, where marked disparity in class and social condition is recognized as an impediment.

Proved immorality and lack of sufficient means to support a wife serve as a bar in Austria. While a marriage between a Christian and a non-Christian is illegal in Austria, a change of faith after marriage in such cases does not validate the union.

Windows in Manila.

Perhaps in no other country in the world are conchas used as a substitute for window glass. These shells are flat, nearly round, and average four inches in diameter. The edges are trimmed off, so as to leave panes about three inches square, and these are set in narrow strips of wood. The shells are, of course, translucent rather than transparent, and the result is a soft, opalescent light, very agreeable in a country where the glare of the sky would be intolerable if ordinary glass were used. To obtain the maximum window openings the sashes are made to slide horizontally on wide sills of hard wood in a manner similar to that adopted by the Japanese. By this means openings as wide as 12 feet are obtained.

TOO MANY SMITHS

Senate Clerk Cannot Call the Roll, as in Olden Times.

There Are Big Smiths and Little Smiths, and Smiths From Nearly Every Section of the Country in the Chamber.

Washington.—Time was when the reading clerk of the senate called the roll of senators and shouted "Mr. Smith" just as he called the names of other senators. If he called "Mr. Smith" in a session of the senate now five senators would respond, provided all the Smiths who are entitled to vote were present.

The largest of the senate Smiths is Hoke Smith of Georgia, who weighs over 250 pounds and is more than six feet tall. The smallest of the five is probably Senator John Walter Smith of Maryland, but it is just as well not to ask him about it.

The latest enumeration of Smiths in the senate shows the following result: Hoke Smith of Georgia, John Walter Smith of Maryland, Ellison Durant Smith of South Carolina, all Democrats, and William Alden Smith of Michigan, Republican. Marcus Aurelius Smith of Arizona, another Democrat. Marcus Aurelius is some Smith and will measure almost as many inches from head to toe as does Hoke Smith of Georgia.

Of the five Smiths now in the senate three are lawyers, Hoke Smith, William Alden Smith and Marcus Aurelius Smith, while one, John Alden Smith, is a merchant, and the fourth, Ellison D. Smith, a farmer. When the clerk of the senate calls the roll of senators he names the Smiths as follows: "Mr. Smith of Michigan," or "Mr. Smith of Georgia," always adding the name of the state. The oldest of the Smiths is John Walter, who will soon be 67, and the youngest is Ellison of South Carolina, who was 45 in August.

When William Alden Smith of Michigan served in the house there were two other Smiths from the same state, so he came over to the senate.

Turning to the Congressional Directory for information concerning the five Smiths, one finds that Senator Hoke Smith requires but seven lines to recount his life history, while Ellison D. requires 25 lines to explain how he came to the senate.

William Alden Smith started life as a newsboy and sold popcorn in the streets of Detroit to support his mother.

John Walter Smith of Maryland grew wealthy in the lumber business.

Marcus Aurelius Smith, the senate's latest acquisition, is Kentucky born, but early in life discovered that there were enough Smiths in that state without him and moved to Arizona.

Each and every one of the Smiths in the senate contends that the senate would be better off if more members of the family belonged to it.

ACQUISITION OF WIRELESS URGED

Four hundred and eighty-eight ocean passenger steamships in the United States have complied with the wireless ship act, according to the report of the commissioner of navigation. One hundred and forty-two other vessels in this country have voluntarily equipped with wireless. The total number of merchant vessels in the world equipped with wireless is now 1,013.

It is suggested that the United States government should control all wireless stations in the country, now operated by four or five corporations. On this point the report says:

"In the light of experience, it is probable that if we had now to meet at the beginning the question of land telegraph lines, the United States would have assumed the ownership and operation of them as other nations have done. If it should be deemed desirable for the government of the United States to acquire the same ownership and control of wireless stations within its limits which other nations have acquired virtually from the outset that result can be brought about with adequate consideration for all bona fide investments of individuals, at much less cost and with much less disturbance to the established order of things now than in the course of a few years."

The commissioner also recommends that the United States make provision to give American ships free use of the Panama Canal.

VENEZUELA HUNTER'S PARADISE.

Ralph Totten, recently consul of the United States at Maracaibo, Venezuela, thinks that Venezuela is the greatest hunting ground in the world. Mr. Totten has been appointed to Trieste, Austria, and stopped in Washington on his way to his post. He says:

"I have always been a source of order to me that more Americans of hunting have not gone to Venezuela, where, along the Amazon and in the vicinity of Lake Maracaibo, more varieties of wild birds and small game can be found than perhaps any other place on earth. So far as I know, there have been only two Americans who have hunted in that country. One of them was Caspar Whitney, the naturalist and writer, who went there to kill a jaguar—a species of the tiger family.

"The jaguar is probably one of the most powerful members of the cat family. He has tremendous strength in his forelegs, and with a stroke of his paw can kill an ox. There are all varieties of the wildcat family in Venezuela, and they can be found almost any place in the country outside of the cities.

"Everyone knows, of course, that myriads of all varieties of the parrot family and monkeys can be found there. There are dozens of different kinds of parrots. Among them is the largest parrot in the world—the macaw—which measures several feet in length. These birds are black, with bright red heads and tails and wings tipped with red. A more beautiful bird I never saw. They fly in pairs, and a peculiarity of the species is that while flying they hook their bills together.

Along the Amazon and Lake Maracaibo, which, by the way, is as large a body of water as Lake Erie, there are all varieties of large snakes. The boa constrictor is a native of that country. The anaconda is another huge reptile that is met frequently.

LABOR STRIKE IN CONGRESS.

For the first time in the history of the government a labor strike held up the machinery of congressional legislation a few days ago. The house committee stenographers refused to work because the accounts committee reduced their compensation from 25 to 15 cents a folio. The sugar trust investigating committee had to adjourn until the following day.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, the pure food expert, had been summoned from the department of agriculture to elucidate the No. 16 Dutch standard clause of the sugar tariff. He came armed with a polarscope, which he set up before the committee, and was re-enforced by two assistants. The full committee was in attendance and a score of witnesses, sugar experts, sugar refiners, beet sugar growers and Michigan farmers were waiting to be called.

Chairman Hardwick called the committee to order and announced that a labor strike had stopped the proceedings.

The stenographers "out" are extras employed to help the regular salaried committee reporters. The reduction of pay would save about $5,000. Chairman Lloyd of the accounts committee said that if the regular reporters interfered they would be dismissed.

POSTAL DEPOSITS GROW.

Postmaster General Hitchcock in his annual report issued recently, discusses the postal savings banks, now established in virtually all of the 7,500 presidential post offices, and announces that plans are under way to extend the service to the 40,000 fourth class post offices that do a money order business.

The report expresses the hope that congress will authorize the establishment of a parcels post, although Mr. Hitchcock believes "great care should be taken not to cause a congestion of the mails and thus embarrass the present operation of the post offices."

"Postal savings deposits have kept pace with the extension of the system," says the report. "Amounting at the end of the first month to only $60,252 in the 48 experimental offices, they increased in a half year to $679,310, and now, after 11 months of operation, have reached a total of $11,000,000. At the present rate of increase the total on deposit in postal banks by July 1, 1912, will be $40,000,000."

ECONOMY TIES BUILDING PLANS

Congressmen who are depending on having obtained appropriations for public buildings to help them on their way back to another term, are much exercised over the dismissal of 80 draftsmen from the treasury department. No fault was found with the men or their work, but the appropriation ran out, thus severing their connection with the pay roll. This brings work on plans for public buildings to a standstill and turns 80 government employees out of their positions. It is going to be a little hard for congressmen to explain why promised public buildings are delayed, but not half as hard as it will be for some of the 80 men out of a job to connect with another where the duties were as light and the pay as heavy.

PLAN MODEL ARMY POST.

Plans have been approved for and work is about to start at Fort Scofield, near Honolulu, on what is to be the model military post of the army.

The buildings will be of reinforced concrete, so designed that each regiment will have a building of its own, including barracks, storerooms and everything necessary for its maintenance as a unit.

The officers quarters will be apart, with double houses for married officers and one house for each four or five bachelor officers. At the post will be concentrated most of the troops now scattered through the islands, so that drills and field exercises on a large scale may be undertaken.

NEW CIVIL SERVICE RULE.

In future, civil service employees proposed for dismissal or reduction in grade or compensation will be furnished with a copy of reason or charges and granted a reasonable time to make answer in writing. This right is granted under an amendment to the civil service rules, the adoption of which has just been made public. Heretofore employees have been dismissed or reduced without notice.

The new rule provides that removal or reduction may be imposed for any cause, which will promote the efficiency of the service, but that like penalties shall be imposed for like offenses, and that no discrimination shall be exercised for political or religious reasons.

THERE is no doubt now that hats (or rather bonnets) made of lace will be a leading feature in headwear for children during the coming spring. Already, those who create the styles for the public's acceptance, or rejection, have made many beautiful bonnets and bonnet-like hats, with such good success, that they will be sure to sell. They appeal to the mothers from the standpoint of beauty and utility, and more than all, from that of economy. The majority are made of narrow val lace and those of other laces as a rule will show good wearing qualities.

These pretty head coverings are made in nearly every case on a wire frame which is faced with shirred silk or chiffon. But sometimes the brim facing is also of lace. Ribbons in silk or velvet are used with them. Many small flowers, too, add to their beauty. They are set in prim and quaint fashion about the crowns, or in one or two little bouquets on the brim. Forget-me-nots, June roses, moss-rose buds, small daisies and blossoms of fruit trees re-

UTILIZING THE SOILED SHOE

Days of Usefulness May Be Extended if Article Is Not Too Far Gone.

Here are a couple of hints for the girl whose dress allowance has to go a long way:

White kid shoes which are too soiled to wear and which are still of a good shape may be renewed for evening wear by painting them with gold paint. Do this carefully and smoothly and the shoes will look like new.

In some cases even soiled satin slippers may be successfully treated in this way. White kid shoes may also be dyed a fast black by applying the following mixture to them: Five cents' worth of gallic acid and five cents' worth of sulphate of iron.

Put the sulphate of iron in just as much water as is required to dissolve it, no more, and apply this to the shoes. Let it dry, then dissolve the gallic acid in a very little water and apply this. When dry the shoes should be a good black color. Great care must be taken in using these chemicals, and after they have been used the surplus quantity should be thrown away.

For the Wee One.

During the winter months a warm wrapper to slip over the baby when he is being taken from one room to another is a necessity. A very pretty one may be made of nun's veiling in pink or blue, with an underlining of thin wadding and batiste. The dainty little garment might be embroidered or scalloped round the edge and would prove a pretty present for baby and also a most useful one.

The wrapper should be large enough to slip on easily, for nothing jars a child's nerves more than to be forced into a coat that is too small, and if the wrap takes the form of cape it is equally necessary that it be large enough to envelop the little form when, as in this case, warmth is the object to be secured.

Dainty Lace Caps.

Lace caps are much in vogue for young girls. It takes the dainty coiffure of the maid to produce the proper effect when the caps are worn, and the bits of vanity are hardly suitable for women of years. All sorts of old lace are being utilized in the manufacture of the caps, the latter being especially desirable for theater wear. They are often finished with sprays of tiny pink rosebuds, and fit closely over the hair.

Blouses With Silk Suits.

Hand tucked tulle blouses are worn with silk suits. They are made quite simple, trimmed only with tulle or net in a or plisses.

main the favored posies for little folks. Small field flowers look well with the heavier laces.

There is really a great amount of work on children's millinery, but it is not of the most difficult character. The pretty hats of lace shown here are not beyond the skill of the mother who makes her children's dresses. The wire frame must be bought from the millinery shop or the department store and covered with mull of silk before the lace and facing are put on. Usually the finished hat looks considerably larger than the frame.

Val and cluny laces are the favorites. Quite a number of novelty laces have been brought out, but are not more attractive than those we have had heretofore.

White and pale colors make up nearly all the bonnets so that a choice of colors is easy enough. Very thin silks, chiffons and laces, are used for facings. Wide, soft ribbons or narrow velvet ribbons are chosen, with small flowers for trimming.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

FOR SPRING WEAR

The young woman who wants to get her spring sewing done ahead of time cannot do better than to copy this charming frock, just completed for a bride who will pass her honeymoon at Aiken. The material is white permo fabric, a soft, lustrous weave of wool with mohair, though any light weight fabric will answer equally well. The scalloped pipings and sash are of gay plaid silk in red, green and white and the scallops around the bottom of the skirt are particularly smart. Beneath these scallops the little white boots show plainly. These pretty boots are of white buckskin and have the new 16 button tops.

Smart Evening Gowns.

Lace and the most gorgeous of brocades threaded with gold and silver and worked in flowers of wool or silk, or both, make up the most handsome of evening gowns. But beaded net is also used, with a softening note of old lace on the shoulders.

CHANGE IN GAMBLE'S LUCK

Finds a $5 Bill, Then Two Tens, but the Next Find Is Something Else.

George Gamble struck a streak of luck the other day. Mr. Gamble, incidentally, is manager of the Pere Marquette fast freight line. He walked into a hotel in Kansas, and there, upon the lobby floor, he saw a small green wad. "A $5 bill," marveled Mr. Gamble when he unrolled it.

A week or so later he ambled into the lobby of another hotel in another state. The first thing his eyes lit upon was a pellet of green near the clerk's desk. Business of making a hurried dive for it and then discovering two $10 bills, packed together. Mr. Gamble observed that he was sure enough in the middle of the lucky curve. He wondered what he would find next.

He came to town, walked into the Cadillac, and there, in the middle of the lobby floor, appeared that familiar little emerald bulb. Mr. Gamble sidled toward it, trying to look as if he was looking another way. Just at that moment a small dog butted in. He seized the little green wad and frolicked toward the street. Mr. Gamble abandoned his pretense at indifference and dived for the mutt. "Grab um," begged Mr. Gamble; "catch um."

A gentleman standing by the door obliged. He took the little bundle out of the dog's mouth; then he looked up at Mr. Gamble. "This yours?" he asked.

Mr. Gamble thought he would take a chance. "Yep," he said; "it's mine. I just missed it."

The gentleman handed over the bundle with an odd look at Mr. Gamble, and went away hastily. Mr. Gamble examined it. The wrapper was of soft green paper. It had broken in several places from the dog's teeth. Inside was a pair of lady's garters.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

ALL ALONE IN THE STORM

Inside, the Merry Country Party Wotted Not of the Forlorn Figure Out in the Cold.

It was bitter cold. The snow fell thickly, and, driven by the wind, it beat relentlessly against the faces of those who were not sheltered. A wild night, indeed. Midwinter, and in the open country, and one of the coldest nights in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

He stood not far from the winding, snowbound road, his face turned toward the highway. A forlorn object in that great storm.

His old felt hat, jammed roughly on his head, but ill-protected his face and ears from the chilly blasts. He wore no overcoat, only a light and much-frayed jacket, more fitted, indeed, for summer weather than the zero temperature of that night. His hands were unprotected by gloves, while his trousers, thin and worn, fluttered about his legs. He wore no shoes.

Inside the great farm, close by, the lights blazed merrily, and through the windows, from which the shades were drawn, could be seen many young people passing hither and thither. A merry country party—youth and laughter.

And now through the storm others make their way to the farmhouse. They are bundled up warm and comfortable, and defy the snow and the cold. They are happy in the anticipation of the joyful evening before them. Care and worry have no part in their minds.

They do not know that close by stands that ill-clad figure, with arms stretched appealingly forth, and if they knew there would be no pity in their hearts.

For it was only the old farmer's scarecrow.—William Sanford in Puck.

Flight of a Honey Bee.

George S. Demuth, now with the United States department of agriculture, but until recently at the head of the apary department in the office of the state entomologist, tells in the forthcoming annual report of the apary department, of proof he has of the great speed attained by honey bees in their flight. Mr. Demuth was shipping some bees from Terre Haute to Indianapolis in a special traction car, when a few of the bees escaped from the boxes in which they were being transported.

"When the bees escaped," said Mr. Demuth, "I watched their behavior and was surprised to find they had no difficulty in flying out at the open car door and flying ahead of the moving car. The car was going at the rate of 35 or 40 miles an hour. In my opinion, the flight of a honey bee must exceed the speed of the average railway train."

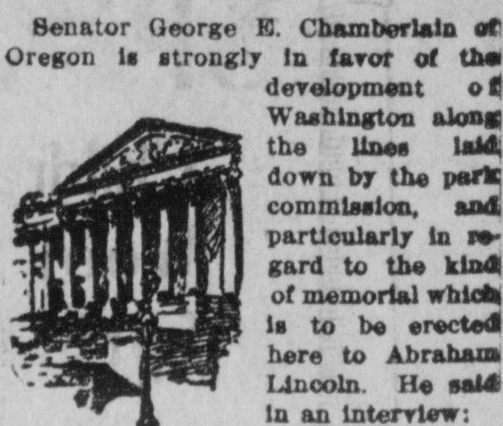

Smoking to Be Stopped.

Statistics gathered through investigation by the authorities of New York city show that 3,245 fires in 1910 and 3,332 in 1911 were caused by the carelessness of smokers, mostly in places of industry. Fire Commissioner Johnson, who has been studying the laws relating to the prevention of fires, as well as to their extinguishment, has discovered a statute which forbids acts which endanger the health or safety of any considerable number of persons, and he is going to attempt to make it applicable to smoking in factories. He has therefore ordered 40,000 notices—printed in English, Yiddish and Italian—prohibiting smoking in factory buildings. These will be universally distributed and followed by vigilant and constant inspection to prevent the violation of his order.

FOR CITY BEAUTIFUL

OREGON SENATOR FAVORS GENEROSITY TOWARD CAPITAL.

Likes Plans of L'Enfant, and Would Have Government Acquire Land South of the Avenue and Raze Old Buildings.

Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon is strongly in favor of the development of Washington along the lines laid down by the park commission, and particularly in regard to the kind of memorial which is to be erected here to Abraham Lincoln. He said in an interview:

"If the original plan of L'Enfant had been carried out the south of Pennsylvania avenue would now be owned and controlled absolutely and entirely by the government of the United States, with public buildings designed and erected in accordance with a systematic plan, making a consistent and beautiful whole. I hope that congress will not be niggardly in the matter of condemning and acquiring for the United States the properties on the south side of the avenue and placing them and the Mall in a condition so that improvements may be made from time to time as have been recommended and as were laid down and marked out by L'Enfant in his original design."

"I do not believe that it was the commercial spirit of the times that marred the plan of L'Enfant for the laying out of the capital. Washington was not looked upon as the site of a great commercial city, and never has been looked upon as such. Its growth, which has been phenomenal in recent years, could not have been foreseen or prophesied by the wisest statesmen in the days gone by. I believe that changes in this plan have been due to the fact that people of the city and of the whole country could not appreciate the importance of the necessity of beautifying the capital and making it what the capitals of the South American republics are, attractive in every sense of the world from an architectural and artistic standpoint.

"I want to urge as strongly as I can that the plan which has been proposed by the McMillan park commission be carried out in one most important particular, and there ought to be constructed on the area westerly from Washington monument and in line with it opposite to the national capitol, on the Potomac, a memorial to Abraham Lincoln.

"A memorial to Lincoln ought to be erected here in Washington, where pilgrimages are constantly and in increasing numbers being made by the patriotic men, women and children of the whole country. A memorial to him should be permanent, imposing, different in design, purpose and intent from any other that adorns the city, and it should be so located as to be easily accessible to all our countrymen who have learned to revere his memory and to love him for the tenderness of his heart as well as for the great services he rendered his country in its darkest hour of trial.

"Some one has recently stated in a communication in one of the evening papers here that the United States is better at republic building than the South American republics, but he found out from actual observation and from being on the ground that they excel us in city and capital building, citing as particular instances of the magnificence of the South American capitals those at Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires. If congress does what these republics have done and will appropriate a sufficient sum to acquire title to all properties on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue and elsewhere necessary to carry out the design of the commission, tear down the old buildings thereon and proceed as necessities require the construction of public and other structures upon a consistent and artistic plan, the time is not far distant when we will prove to the world that we can when we try to do so, with our wealth, with our ability and with our distinguished architects, excel in capital building as well as in republic building."

Setting One's Heart on a Purpose.

A man should conceive of a legitimate purpose in his heart, and set out to accomplish it. He should make this purpose the centralizing point of his thoughts. It may take the form of a spiritual ideal, or it may be a worldly object, according to his nature at the time being; but whichever it is, he should steadily focus his thought forces upon the object which he has set before him. He should make this purpose his supreme duty, and should devote himself to its attainment, not allowing his thoughts to wander away into ephemeral fancies, longings and imaginings.—James Allen.

Reaching One's Audience.

It is a great mistake to think anything to profound or rich for a popular audience. No train of thought is too deep, or subtle, or grand; but the manner of presenting it should be peculiar. It should be presented in anecdote or sparkling truism or telling illustration, or stinging epithet; always in some concrete form—never in a logical, abstract, syllogistic shape.—Rufus Choate.

GOVERNOR WILL SOUND KEYNOTE

Program Arranged By Democratic State Committee.

PLANS COMING CONVENTION

Meeting of the State Committee This Afternoon, It Is Announced, Will Be Followed by Announcement of the Program For State Convention March 21, Governor Marshall to Be Named as the Temporary Chairman.

Indianapolis, March 5.—It is expected that before the Democratic state committee adjourns this afternoon it will announce the selection of Governor Marshall for the position of temporary chairman of the state convention, which will be held at Tomlinson hall on March 21. Just what other business will come before the committee is not known, but it is understood that the full details of the temporary organization of the state convention will be determined at this meeting.

Leading Democrats say that Governor Marshall is the logical man for the temporary chairmanship. Not only is he the governor of the state, but he is the candidate of the Indiana Democrats for the nomination for president, they say, and this entitles him to the honor.

The temporary chairman is the man that delivers the keynote speech for the campaign. If Governor Marshall is selected for temporary chairman, as it is practically certain that he will be, it will be up to him to make the speech defining the position of the Indiana Democracy on the political issues of the campaign. And since he is a candidate for the presidency, those who discuss the matter say that the speech probably will be made a national campaign document and distributed all over the country.

DO NOT CONFLICT

Court Holds Nicholson and Proctor Laws Stand Together.

Indianapolis, March 5.—An unsuccessful attack on the Nicholson law was made in the criminal court by William N. Harding, attorney for James Scanlon, roadhouse keeper, who filed a motion to quash that part of the indictment against him which sets out his former convictions and attributes to the court jurisdiction to revoke the license. Mr. Harding argued that the Proctor liquor regulation law repealed the clause in the Nicholson law which gives the judge of the police or criminal court the power to revoke a license when the holder has been twice before convicted of violating that law.

Judge Markey overruled the motion and said that both laws might well stand together and did not conflict. Mr. Harding argued that the Proctor law placed the power of revoking a license in the board of county commissioners and that a method of procedure by which the commissioners could revoke a license was clearly set out in that law.

Scanlon's attorney said no fight would be made on the charge that Scanlon's place was open last Labor day, the offense for which he is being tried. As Scanlon does not deny that charge, all the state has to do is to prove by the records his former convictions under the Nicholson law.

Miners' Election Returns.

Brazil, Ind., March 5.—Lawrence Garrigus of Perth, according to unofficial returns, has defeated James D. Holden, present incumbent, for president of District 8 of the United Mine Workers of America. Charles Griffin, a colored man, carried two of the three local in Brazil.

Recovery Is Predicted.

Muncie, Ind., March 5.—Hospital physicians predict the recovery of Warren Stroup, the young married man who shot Mrs. Margaret Cooper last Thursday night, and turned the weapon on himself. Mrs. Cooper has been removed to the home of a relative.

A Gun in Careless Hands.

Bedford, Ind., March 5.—While a bunch of boys was playing in the woods, Willie Ping, twenty-one years old, was accidentally shot in the forehead with an air rifle in the hands of Claude Faubion, the ball penetrating the skull. The lad is unconscious.

J. R. ANDREWS.

Ohio Senator Indicted in the Bribery Investigation.

Columbus, O., March 5.—The trial of State Senator L. R. Andrews of Iron-ton, charged with accepting a bribe of $200 in connection with the Whittemore insurance bill, is in progress. Senator Andrews is one of a group of senators tracked by detectives, who charged they solicited money in connection with legislation before the last general assembly.

ALLEGED ROBBER WAS ACTIVE CHURCH GOER

Also Took Part In Y. M. C. A. Activities.

Lafayette, Ind., March 5.—Fred Hix, aged twenty-six, was arrested at the Y. M. C. A. building here, charged with leading a dual life, posing as a gentleman of leisure in the daytime and at night committing bold burglaries at different points in Indiana.

Hix has been living at the Y. M. C. A. for several months, and, apparently, was a man of excellent habits, who attended church and Sunday school and took part in Y. M. C. A. activities. He was walking down Main street when a boy from Battle Ground recognized him as a man who escaped from the marshal of that place several months ago after being arrested on suspicion in connection with a robbery of the Monon railroad station there.

Hix was arrested by the sheriff and city police and at first denied that he ever had been arrested before. It was learned, however, that Judge Vinton had filed parole papers for Hix, and that Hix was reporting to Judge Vinton every month. The young man had served a term at Jeffersonville for grand larceny, committed at Crawfordsville, and was paroled a year and a half ago.

Hix had an extensive wardrobe, wore a different suit of good quality each day of the week. The police searched his room at the Y. M. C. A. and found, among other things, a small "jimmy," such as is used in prying open windows. Hix denies, however, that he committed the chain of robberies attributed to him.

Women Terrorize London.

London, March 5.—London resembles an armed camp, and all because of the obstreperous conduct of the suffragettes in their window smashing campaign. There are 6,000 policemen on duty at Westminster and the shopping districts in the west end of the city, to prevent further window breaking demonstrations on the part of the militant suffragettes following their demonstration last night.

BIG RETURN FROM DOLLAR

For a dollar given to a stranger eight years ago Joseph Clair, a Philadelphia druggist, may receive an estate of over $125,000. Eight years ago a man who was evidently suffering from the effects of the night before came into the drug store and told Clair that he was up against it, had spent his last cent and needed enough to get a bite to eat. He asked for a quarter.

After a short talk Clair gave the man a dollar and the stranger departed with the remark: "You'll never regret this, young man. It will be richly repaid."

Clair forgot the incident. Five years ago the man again came into the store and recalling the dollar loan made the druggist a present of a handsome gold-headed cane. Clair did not forget the matter so quickly then, but he was thoroughly surprised a few days ago when he received a letter from a firm of lawyers in Rockdale, Wyo., saying that Joseph Waters, a wealthy rancher near that city, had left his entire property, valued at over $125,000, to him.

TRAVELER'S MISTAKE

Will Chinese customs and traditions change with the new regime? If they do travel in the Celestial empire will be deprived of much of its pleasures, which are sometimes attended with excitement, not to say danger. Two Englishmen traveling in Ning-Po on a visit to a Chinese official during the autumn had, to say the least, a diverting time. They were being carried in sedan chairs, and feeling the atmosphere oppressive asked the bearers to give them a little fresh air by opening the roof. The men met the request with stolid indifference, so the travelers decided to open the roof themselves. As they approached the city they found that they were the objects of considerable attention. A crowd of 500 surrounded the chairs, and soon it increased to 2,000, the people uttering menacing cries. Happily nothing worse happened. When they reached their destination their host received them with astonishment. "Good gracious," said he, "what have you done? Only condemned criminals here travel in an open chair!"

STOMACH FULL OF TACKS

Abraham Leconey, a shoemaker at Delanco, N. J., was taken to a Philadelphia hospital the other day for a "tack-lifting" operation upon which physicians are relying to save his life. For nearly a year Leconey has been suffering from stomach ache. All the home remedies failed to relieve him, and the puzzled doctors proposed an X-ray examination. The spot-light revealed about 100 brass tacks sticking in the walls of the shoemaker's stomach. He admitted that for several years he had used his mouth for a temporary tack box while at work at his bench, as shoemakers do, and said he remembered swallowing a good many during the last ten years. Surgeons say one section of Leconey's stomach has more tacks in it than the sole of a boot.

FREAKISH AMERICAN BOAT

This photograph depicts one of the most curious boats that has ever ridden the waters. It is the invention of a retired captain of the American navy, who claims that it possesses all sorts of remarkable advantages over the ordinary screw-propelled vessel. The boat suggests a steam-roller or a couple of tool-sheds and a pair of garden-rollers, and although it presents a somewhat ungainly picture it does effectually what is claimed for it.

BETTER GROW MUSHROOMS

Scientists have known of mushroom growing ants for a long time, and it was generally believed that the ant was the only insect possessing sufficient intelligence to make a successful mushroom farmer. Prof. J. Bouvier, the French entomologist, has found that a certain wood boring beetle known as the Bostrychide is as familiar with mushroom cultivation for home consumption as the ant. Professor Bouvier discovered that the beetles bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus, which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawned and tended, and in course of time the mushrooms appear. In this way the beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws.

SWISS SOLD WIFE FOR $4

At the village of Utzmach, near St. Gall, Switzerland, a woman was "sold" recently, with her consent, to another man by her husband. The buyer, an Italian and friend of the Swiss couple, thought he was "legalizing" the sale by procuring two witnesses and having the contract written on stamped government paper. The Italian told his Swiss friend that he wanted a wife and the Swiss promptly offered to sell him his own wife at a bargain price, which was then discussed and fixed at 16s.

THE TAFT-TEDDY FIGHT WARMS UP

The Colonel Is Out With Another Statement.

TAFT FORCES FOLLOW SUIT

The Latter For the First Time Ring in the Names of George W. Perkins and the Steel Trust and International Harvester Company as Aiders and Abettors of Roosevelt Campaign.—Colonel Explains Letter.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 5.—A letter written by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to E. A. Van Valkenburgh, editor of the Philadelphia North American, on June 27, 1911, which contained the statement that he had assured Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Meyer and others that he would not be a candidate in 1912 is explained by the colonel, who says it was perfectly true that he had said that he would not be a candidate in 1912, but that he had not asserted that he would not accept the nomination if it was offered to him. He made it clear that he saw nothing in his letter to Van Valkenburgh to conflict with his recent statement that he would accept the nomination if tendered to him.

"To all who were at that time writing me if I was a candidate, I answered that I was not," he said. "To all who then asked me if I would accept if nominated, I answered 'Yes.' If I knew them sufficiently well to be sure they would absolutely understand me, I answered that I would accept, if nominated. Otherwise I simply told them I would not cross that bridge until I came to it."

"In most cases, if my correspondents were close personal friends, I told them that I counted upon them doing everything possible toward preventing any movement looking to my nomination. It was not until within the last three or four months that I was finally obliged to come to the conclusion that there was a real demand among the people as a whole for my nomination, which did not come in any way from any friends of mine and was neither inspired or engineered by them. When I became convinced that this demand was real and was considerable, and when the governors of seven states (increased by this time to ten, I may mention incidentally) asked me if I would accept if nominated, I answered 'Yes.'"

"I added an expression of my wish that wherever possible presidential preference primaries might be held so as to find out whether the Republican voters wished to have me nominated. If the people do not wish me to serve, most certainly I do not wish to serve. If they do desire me to undertake, in their interest, a great task, I shall certainly do so, and shall perform it with whatever courage and ability I possess."

"Whether there will be such an expression of the popular will I can't say, as where there are no presidential preference primaries it unfortunately seems too often to be the case that the efforts of the political leaders is not to give expression to the popular will, but to thwart it in every way possible."

"In June, 1911, and about that time, persistent efforts were made from Washington to convince the progressives that I was really supporting Mr. Taft. On one particular occasion the statement was made with great explicitness. I promptly denied that statement, and was assured on one hand that the statement was inspired from the White House, and was informed on the other that it had not originated there, but was made purely on the initiative of the Associated Press. The Associated Press people assured me that they were not responsible for the false statement."

"As will be seen by reference to the Van Valkenburgh letter, Mr. Noyes (of the Associated Press) was quoted as having got information from independent sources. I hardly need point out that I cannot know who gave out this letter, but certainly not Mr. Van Valkenburgh, as I know him to be an honorable man."

The letter was called forth by an Associated Press dispatch which represented Mr. Roosevelt as having pledged himself to Taft. Colonel Roosevelt in the Van Valkenburgh letter characterizes this published report as a "deliberate invention."

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, when questioned in regard to the Roosevelt letter, declined to comment on it.

The publication of the Roosevelt letter is only one of several developments in the last day or two that indicates that the campaign of Mr. Taft and his predecessor and political sponsor is going to be extremely bitter. The Taft campaign bureau gave out a statement last night for the first time in which they brought in the names of George W. Perkins, the steel trust and the International Harvester company in connection with activity of the Roosevelt boomers. Perkins is mentioned as a contributor to the Roosevelt fund.

Charged With Heinous Offense.

Bloomington, Ind., March 5.—George Taylor, twenty-one years old, is held here on a charge of attacking Lena, the eleven-year-old daughter of Samuel H. Patton, a farmer.

FIRST HIGH SILK HAT

It was in January, 1797, that the first high silk hat was seen upon a man's head. The London Times in its issue of Jan. 16 of that year related the event as follows:

"John Hetherington, mercer in the Strand, was arraigned before the lord mayor, who found him guilty of disorderly conduct and inciting to riot and imposed a fine of £500. Mr. Hetherington, with the evident intention of frightening the people, appeared in the public street wearing a strange high hat covered with very glossy silk, the luster of which dazzled the sight. According to the testimony of the constables, several women fainted at the sight, children screamed with fright, the panic-stricken crowd fled and one of the sons of Mr. Thomas Currier was thrown down in the excitement and broke his arm."

HUNTS DAILY, THOUGH 103

Seventy-eight years ago Donald Davis, a native of West Royalton, Mass., was dropped from the Boston police force on the advice of a physician, who said that he had but a year to live and that if he wanted to die at home he had better return there at once. Mr. Davis celebrated his 103rd birthday the other day, and he maintains that he is hardly beginning to feel old. He goes almost daily with his gun into the woods and seldom comes back without game. His wife, whom he married in 1842, still presides over his household at the age of 95 years.

GREYHOUND OF AFGHANISTAN

The greyhound, one of the oldest varieties of the dog known, takes remarkable form in Afghanistan, as this photograph bears witness. It has a coat like a hearth-rug, and is, of course, the result of much cross breeding.

THOUSAND-YEAR-OLD BREAD

During recent excavations at Ljunga, in Sweden, a loaf was discovered which must be quite 1,000 years old. It has been carefully examined and has been found to consist of pea-flour and the bark of the fir tree. The latter is nothing unusual, for during many times of sore hardship the Swedish peasantry have had to fall back upon bark bread, made simply from the bark of the trees. There are still living old men and women in remote parts of Sweden who can remember eating bark bread in the hard days of their youth.

WEDDED PROFANITY

One often finds euphony existing in the names of couples who go to the altar, but rarely to the extent of that recorded in a Cloquet paper, which chronicles the marriage of Charles B. Gosh and Annie B. Damm under the caption of "Gosh-Damm." The good gentleman of the cloth who performed the ceremony doubtless had a hard task, but, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, he bravely overcame the difficulty by coughing violently every time he was called to pronounce the bride's name.

MAIL BAGS OF RULERS

The mail bag at the Vatican probably contains the largest number of letters that are addressed to any single person or institution. Emperor William of Germany comes next with an average of 7,500 letters a day. Then comes the president of the United States with an average of 5,000 letters. The letters of the king of England have dwindled down to 2,500 a day, about one-third the number received by his father. The mail of the czar of Russia, is comparatively small, being only about 500 a day.

ROBINS ARE DRUNKARDS

Robins in Georgia have acquired habits of insobriety. The "bird licker" that intoxicates them is believed to be obtained from China berries, which grow in profusion there. Many of the robins that have been found in a "drunken" condition have been watched during the time of their stupefaction, watchers being careful to keep out at a safe distance, and it has been observed that in a few hours the birds revive and immediately go back to the China berry trees.

Facing a Famine.

An untimely biting frost effectually completed the mischief done earlier by the insect enemies of Mr. Barden's potatoes. The tops of the plants, which had served as pasturage for the pests, were entirely destroyed, and with them Mr. Barden's hopes of a crop. He was not selfish, however, and could think of others in the hour of adversity. Going to town in the afternoon, he was accosted at the post office by James Hayes, an intimate acquaintance. "Hello, Gilles! How's everything up to the corners?" "Trouble enough, Jim. Trouble enough!" was the gloomy response. "Ten million 'tater bugs, and nothing for 'em to eat!"—Youth's Companion.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Fascination of Football.

Edgar M. Church, the famous football veteran of Philadelphia, was talking at Franklin field about football's charms. "When I was playing in '91's class games," said he, "there was a '91 chap who lost a dear relative. The funeral took place the day we played '92, and, at the game's end, as I was crossing over to the college, the funeral procession glided slowly past. All of a sudden a head was thrust out of one of the mourning coaches and a voice said: 'Have we licked 'em, Churchy?' 'Yes,' said I. 'Hurrah!' shouted my classmate, and drew in his head again, and drove on sorrowing."—Philadelphia Times.

New Englander on Suffrage.

While in Richmond recently for the performance of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," Kate Douglas Wiggin was asked how she stood on the question of votes for women. Replying with a laugh that she didn't stand at all, she told about a New England farmer's wife who had no very romantic ideas about the opposite sex. She was hurrying from churn to sink, from sink to shed, and back to the kitchen stove when asked if she approved of woman's suffrage, and if she wished to vote. "No, I certainly do not," she exclaimed with a vigorous movement of the churn dasher; "I say if there is any one little thing that the men folks can do alone, for goodness sake let 'em do it."

The most common cause of insomnia is disorders of the stomach. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets correct these disorders and enable you to sleep. For sale by all dealers.

Counting Up.

"Think of the golden moments you have wasted playing bridge," said the serious friend. "Yes," replied Mrs. Flinnght, regretfully, "besides a lot of silver coin and paper currency."

When you have rheumatism in your foot or instep apply Chamberlain's Liniment and you will get quick relief. It costs but a quarter. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

WHITE SLAVERS TO BE PUNISHED

Nation-Wide Crusade Against Iniquitous Traffic

MEN OF MEANS BEHIND MOVE

Under the Direction of the American Vigilance Association, Headed by David Starr Jordan, a General On-slaught Will Be Made Upon the nefarious Crew Whose Traffic in White Slaves Has Become a World Stench.

Washington, March 5.—Under the direction of David Starr Jordan of the American Vigilance association, lately organized as the working force of this new movement, some of the biggest enterprises of the country, working in conjunction with the department of justice, are beginning a gigantic campaign against white slavery in the United States. Funds for the prosecution of the campaign have been pouring in from all over the country. Associated with the movement are some of the wealthiest men in this country, whose names are at present withheld. It is understood that they have pledged themselves to furnish the money for the support of the organization.

The work of the American Vigilance association will be conducted through a number of departments. Headquarters are already in readiness in New York and Chicago, and offices will soon be opened in San Francisco. The plan of operation of the association is simple but complete. Attached to each headquarters will be lawyers, detectives and educators. Whenever a city or town wants to start a crusade against the white slave traffic the association will supply it with detectives, who will investigate conditions, and lawyers who will prepare the evidence. The evidence will then be turned over to the state or federal authorities and the influence of the association will be exerted to bring about effective prosecution.

Acting under this arrangement the association will begin investigations into the white slave traffic in five different cities within the next few days.

READY TO SERVE

The Colonel Declines to Sidestep Duty as a County Juror.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 5.—"All call jurors please answer to your names and save your fines," chanted the clerk of the Nassau court, adding almost in the same breath, as he began the roll: "Theodore Roosevelt." Colonel Roosevelt answered "Here" and saved his fine. The colonel studied his court calendar closely and appeared to take a keen interest in all that was going on. He said later that it was to be his first experience as a juror.

When he colonel arrived at the Nassau county courthouse at Mineola, Justice Putnam called him into his chambers and told the colonel he would be glad to excuse him if he cared to plead "public business." But the colonel would do nothing of the kind. He explained that he would like to get off today to keep an appointment in New York, but that otherwise he was ready to do his duty.

To a reporter who expressed surprise that Colonel Roosevelt had not been excused from serving, the colonel replied: "I'm not asking any favors. I'll serve if they wish."

Then he took his seat within the rail with the other talesmen, heard the grand jury sworn in and listened to the calling of the calendar before it came his turn to take part. When the list of call jurors was read, the colonel's name was first on the list. As he stepped before the bench Justice Putnam said:

"I understand it would be more agreeable to you, colonel, to appear later in the week."

"It would be more convenient, your honor," replied the colonel, and the court told him to be on hand on Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Colonel Roosevelt said he had no idea how long he would be in court. He would be in his place on Wednesday, ready to serve as long as he was needed. He gets $3 a day and a mileage allowance while he is serving.

AGAIN IN DITCH

"Eighteen Hour" Limited Has Some More Hard Luck.

Upper Sandusky, O., March 5.—The Pennsylvania railroad's eighteen-hour flyer, bound from New York for Chicago, was wrecked at Glennville, O. None of the passengers or crew was killed, but thirty-five of the former were severely bruised by being tossed about in the berths.

One of the double trucks on the first engine broke and the locomotive was thrown from the rails. The engineer of the second locomotive stuck to his post and reduced the train's speed considerably before his engine and the two following cars left the track.

Ended Hopeless Struggle.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 5.—Despondent over his own ill health and because his wife is a helpless invalid from paralysis, Israel Luther, aged sixty-eight, farmer and fruit grower, committed suicide.

POURS HOT SHOT INTO SENATOR STEPHENSON

Election "Tainted at the Fountain," Says Kenyon.

Washington, March 5.—In the consideration of the Stephenson case Senator Kenyon of Iowa was the principal speaker in the senate. Kenyon is a progressive Republican. He was one of the five senators who signed the minority report of the committee on privileges and elections, declaring that Senator Stephenson's seat should be vacated. He was severe on the aged senator's campaign methods.

"This election," said Mr. Kenyon, "is, as Lord Coke said in the Long case, 'tainted at its fountain.'"

"The methods employed would not have dignified a candidacy for county sheriff. The election was the result of an organized riot of corruption; a debauchery of the electorate by threatening, employment, purchase of newspaper influence and other despicable methods, creating by money political enthusiasm and securing political support. Such practices should cease and cease now. Otherwise the canker of corruption will eat close to the heart of the republic."

"If men can be sent here by money, others can be defeated by money, and there are men in this chamber who know what it means to have the purses of great interests opened to defeat them. We are marching on, no one need be discouraged; the people, not money, are going to rule in this country. We are advancing."

"Above any other question is the great one of public policy. A man who turns loose this enormous sum of money to secure a seat here is not as a matter of public policy entitled to remain a member of this body. Even were the election legal he should be expelled."

THE BRITISH STRIKE

Gradually Producing a Condition of Trade Paralysis.

London, March 5.—The general British public has awakened to a realization of the fact that the curtailment of the nation's industries because of the coal miners' strike is rapidly approaching a condition of paralysis. Besides the more than a million miners who are out on strike, it is estimated that 300,000 men in other lines of endeavor are idle, while 1,425,000 others have been served with notice that their services will not be needed within a short time. Thus far there has been little disorder among the strikers.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The increase in wages granted by the Lawrence mills failed to result in a rush of the strikers back to their places, as was expected by some.

The British Museum and the Royal Academy in London have been indefinitely closed in the fear that the rampaging suffragettes might damage their priceless treasures.

American cowboys were attacked on a ranch near Columbus, N. M., about forty miles from the line, by Mexican bandits. The cowboys killed all the bandits and their horses.

A movement to remove the ban of the Methodist Episcopal general conference from theater going was inaugurated at a meeting of the Cincinnati Methodist Ministers' association and received the indorsement of a majority of the persons present.

The report that the United States has laid claim to Palmyria island, southwest of the Hawaiian islands, where the United States cruiser West Virginia recently planted the American flag, has aroused attention in the British house of commons.

An unidentified man attempted to assassinate Leopold De Rothschild at London. A shot was fired at the financier, but the bullet went wide and struck a detective, badly wounding him. The would-be assassin was arrested, but refused to give his name or tell why he had attempted to kill the banker.
